THE INDIAN EXECUTIONS.

Hanging of 35 Sioux Murderers.

PARSED INTERVIEW WITH OLD ASSOCI-

ATES.

On Wednesday, each Indian set apart for execution, was permitted to send for two or three of his relatives or friends
to stand by him, and to carry with them such personal effects as they might desire to take with them. Each Indian was permitted to send for his family, and to see them before he was executed. The Indians were all very brave, and none of them showed any signs of fear or distress.

WHAT THEN.

After the joys of earth,

After its sorrows and trials,

After its dreams so bright—

What then?

Only an empty name,

Only a weary frame,

Only a conscious smart,

Only an aching heart.

After this empty name,

After this weary frame,

After this conscious smart,

After this aching heart—

What then?

Only a sad farewell

To a world loved too well;

Only a silent dead

With the forgotten dead.

After this sad farewell

To a world loved too well;

After this silent dead

With the forgotten dead—

What then?

HOOD'S SEASON.

Summer's gone and vero!

Fog is falling down;

And with sunset tinges

Autumn's doing brown.

Boughs are daily rilled

By the gusty thief;

And the Book of Nature

Getteth short of leaves.

Round the tops of hemlocks,

Swallows, as they flit,

Give, like yearly tenants,

Notices to quit.

Skies, of fields temper.

Weep by turns and laugh—

Night and day together,

Taking half and half.

So October ends—

Cold, and most perverse—

But the month that follows

Sure will pinch us worse.

MISTEROUS ORGANIST.

A Legend of the Rhine.

"Kind hearts are more than coronets,

And simple faith than Norman crests."

Years ago at a grand cathedral overlooking Rhine, there appeared a mysterious organist. The great composer who played the organ so long, suddenly died,

and every one from the King to the peasant, was wondering who could be found to fill his place, when, one bright Sabbath morning, as the sexton entered the church, he saw a stranger sitting at the organ. He was a tall, slender man, with a pale face and a long, flowing beard. He was dressed in a simple black robe, and he looked like a man of great power and wisdom.

He was seated at the organ, and he was playing a beautiful melody.

The sexton approached him, and he looked up at him with a smile.

"What is your name?" he asked.

"My name is Hans," he replied.

"Where do you come from?" he asked.

"I come from the Rhine," he replied.

"What is your business?" he asked.

"I am an organist," he replied.

"What is your name?" he asked.

"My name is Hans," he replied.
